SECOND REPORT
OF
THE COMMISSIONERS
IRISH EDUCATION INQUIRY.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR MAJESTY:

WE propose in this our Second Report, to lay before Your Majesty, an Abstract of the Returns, which we obtained in the year 1824, from the Protestant and Roman Catholic Clergy in Ireland, of the state of Education in their respective Parishes.

IN the execution of the Commission with which we were intrusted, it was our first proceeding to address a Circular Form of Return to the Parochial Clergy of the Established Church, and also to the Roman Catholic Priests, and to the several Presbyterian Ministers; as it appeared to us desirable that an opportunity should be afforded of comparing information derived from sources independent of each other. Nor have we been disappointed in the result; for, although instances of disagreement will be found to occur, on the whole, they have been fewer and less important than could reasonably have been expected in an undertaking of this nature; and the comparison of the several Statements will increase the authority of each.

In order to give the strongest sanction to the Returns, we have, in the exercise of the power committed to us by Your Majesty, thought it proper to call on each person making them, to verify them by swearing, That he had inquired with due and reasonable diligence into the matters contained in the Return; and that the Statement therein made, as to each head respectively, was the truth, according to the best judgment that he had been able to form upon the subject.

We regret that we cannot exhibit the Returns made by the Presbyterian Ministers, in such a manner as to render them the subject of comparison with those obtained from the Clergy of the Established Church, and from the Roman Catholic Priests. This, however, is not possible, as the limits of the Presbyterian congregations are not determined by parochial boundaries. We have, however, to express our high sense of the value of the information which we have derived from their communications.

In the Appendix will be found an Abstract of the Returns obtained from the Clergy of the Established Church, and from the Roman Catholic Priests respectively, in as compressed a form as we can adopt; it being scarcely possible, from the great extent of the originals, that they should themselves be published at length.

SECOND REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS

We shall now proceed to point out a few of their general results, which, amidst so much detail, might otherwise escape attention.

The Total Number of Schools in Ireland appears to be - 11,823

Of these there were,

In ULSTER	-	-	-	-	3,449
LEINSTER	-	-	-	-	3,492
MUNSTER	-	-	-	-	3,359
CONNAUGHT	-	-	-	-	1,523
					11,823

The Masters and Mistresses of these Schools appear to be, 12,530

Of these there were,

Of the Established Church	-	-	-	-	3,098
Protestant Dissenters	-	-	-	-	1,058
Roman Catholics	-	-	-	-	8,300
Religion not stated	-	-	-	-	74
					12,530

These were distributed among the several Provinces, as follows:

	Established Church.	Protestant Dissenters.	Roman Catholics.	Religion not stated.
In ULSTER	1,093	938	1,482	27
LEINSTER	1,128	65	2,612	25

	3,098	1,058	8,300	74

The total number of Children in attendance in these Schools, taken on an average of three months in the autumn of 1824, was, according to the Returns made by the Protestant Clergy, after amending them from the Returns of the Roman Catholic Clergy, by adding such Schools as were not noticed in the former - 560,549

Viz.

					560,549

The total number taken in the same manner, for the same period, was, according to the Returns of the Roman Catholic Clergy, amended from the Returns of the Protestant Clergy, on the principle above stated: - 568,964

					568,964

We have now to state the proportion which the Children of different religious creeds were found to bear to each other.

By

By the Returns of the Protestant, amended by those of the Roman Catholic Clergy, on the principle before stated, the number of Children in the Schools was - - - - - 560,549

Who were thus distributed; viz.

	Of the Established Church.	Presbyterians.	Protestant Dissenters of other Denominations.	Roman Catholics.	Religion not stated.	TOTAL.

	93,452	45,304	3,412	408,285	10,096	560,549

It may here be observed that, according to these Returns, the total number of Protestant Children of all Denominations in Education, was, to that of the Roman Catholic Children, as 1 to 3, nearly; that the number of the Children of the Established Church are nearly twofold the number of the Protestant Dissenters; and that of the whole number of Presbyterians, and other Protestant Dissenters, about twenty-five out of twenty-six are in the Province of Ulster.

By the Returns of the Roman Catholic, amended by those of the Protestant Clergy, the number of Children was - - - - - 568,964

We shall next advert to the several Societies, which have of late years been engaged in supplying the means of Education in Ireland, and shall point out the number of Children in attendance in their several schools.

With respect, however, to the numbers specified in these Returns, it should be observed, that the opposition on the part of the Roman Catholic Clergy to Schools in which, by the regulations of the different Societies, the Scriptures were required to be read, was exerted with peculiar activity during the year 1824, to which period the Returns have reference ; there is no doubt, therefore, that in the earlier part of the year there had been a fuller attendance in the Schools belonging to those Societies ; and it is probable that the Children which had been withdrawn from such Schools, had increased the numbers in others.

* In a Return made by us to the House of Commons, on the 20th March last, pursuant to an Order of the House, we stated the number of Schools as returned to us by the Protestant and Roman Catholic Clergy, in connexion with the Kildare-Place Society, to be 852, containing 52,404 Scholars. But on a more minute examination of the Returns, it appears from various particulars, stated, not in the column appropriated specifically for that purpose, but in other parts of the Returns, that other Schools had received aid from the Kildare-Place Society; and in this manner, the difference between the number stated above, and that stated in our Return to the House of Commons, is to be accounted for.

It is necessary, however, to observe, that by far the greater part of the Returns above abstracted, were made in the autumn of 1824; and there is reason to believe (as we have before stated generally with respect to all Schools, in which by the regulations of the different Societies the Scriptures are required to be read) that in consequence of the exertions of the Roman Catholic Priests, these Schools, at the period when the enumeration was taken, were not so fully attended by the Roman Catholic Children as in the earlier part of the year.

The Society subsequently transmitted to us a List, dated June 1825, of every School in connexion with them on the 5th of April preceding. We have inserted this List in the Appendix to this Report. There are 1,517 Schools contained in it: 900 of these Schools are included in the Returns made to us by the Clergy, and 617 are not included in them. We have set forth in the Appendix, a List specifying the 900* which are included, and also a List specifying the 617 not included. It will be observed, that the difference between the Returns of the Clergy and the List of the Society, consists principally in this, that the Returns of the Clergy include only such Schools as they found open and in operation, in the autumn of 1824; whereas the List of the Society includes Schools to which they had granted or agreed to grant aid, and which were therefore upon their books, although not going forward. At the time when the Returns of the Clergy were made to us, some Schools were temporarily closed, some had been closed for a considerable time, but it was hoped would be revived; some had not then commenced, and some were entered upon the books of the Society, after the Returns of the Clergy had been sent in.

* There is reason to believe, that at the time the Enumeration was taken, these Schools, in consequence of the exertions of the Roman Catholic priests, were not as fully attended as they had been at an earlier period of the year.

The Institutions and Societies enumerated under the seven preceding heads, are conducted chiefly by Protestants.

The three next following Classes of Schools are founded and superintended by Roman Catholics.

VIII.—The Schools of the Christian Brotherhood, and sundry Religious Orders.

The three classes of Schools last above mentioned, contain altogether, according to the Roman Catholic Returns, 422 Schools, and 46,963 Children.

These Schools are under the immediate sanction and superintendence of the Roman Catholic Clergy. The Education is almost universally gratuitous, and is so strictly Roman Catholic in its character, that although Protestant children are not excluded from the Schools, few are found to attend them.

XI.—Pay Schools.

THIS Class comprises the Schools unconnected with Societies, and held by individuals for their own profit.

Of these there were :—

According to the Returns of the Protestant, amended by those of the Roman Catholic Clergy	Schools.	Scholars.
- - - - -	9,352	394,732

According to the Returns of the Roman Catholic, amended by those of the Protestant Clergy	Schools.	Scholars.
- - - - -	9,352	403,774

These Schools cannot be considered as being under any particular superintendence. They arise, from time to time, as circumstances create a demand for them; and are frequently undertaken by persons very ill qualified to discharge the duties of Schoolmasters.

The Parish Schools, established under the provisions of the Act 28 Henry VIII. c. 15, and subject to the superintendence of the Clergy of the Established Church, cannot, for the purposes of this enumeration, be considered as constituting a distinct class, as they will all be found to rank under one or other of the classes before specified.

Their Total number, as stated in the Returns, was 827; and of these 180 were connected with the Association for discountenancing Vice; 39 with the Trustees of Erasmus Smith; 188 with the Kildare Place Society; and 94 with the London Hibernian Society. The rest of the Parish Schools are not distinguishable from the ordinary Pay Schools of the country; except that the Church Catechism is taught in them to the children belonging to the Established Church, and the master receives a small annual stipend, usually of 40s. from the minister of the parish by whom he is in all such cases appointed.

Of these there were :—

	Schools.	Scholars.

And according to the Returns of the Roman Catholic, amended by those of the Protestant Clergy - - - - -	827	40,056

In these Schools the children are classed with respect to their several religious creeds, as follows :—

According to the Returns of the Protestant, amended by those of the Roman Catholic Clergy :—

Of the Established Church - - - - -	18,768
Presbyterians - - - - -	4,281
Protestant Dissenters of other denominations - - - - -	178
Roman Catholics - - - - -	17,124
Religion not stated - - - - -	407
	40,758

And according to the Returns of the Roman Catholic, amended by those of the Protestant Clergy :—

Of the Established Church - - - - -	18,449
Presbyterians - - - - -	3,920
Protestant Dissenters of other Denominations - - - - -	300
Roman Catholics - - - - -	16,867
Religion not stated - - - - -	520
	40,056

The Enumeration and general classification of the Schools of Ireland above given, does not include Sunday School Institutions, which now remain to be noticed.

IT appears by the evidence of Mr. La Touche, the Secretary of the Sunday School Society, that the number of their Schools in March 1824, was 1640; and that they contained about 157,184 Scholars, who were instructed gratuitously by 12,578 voluntary Teachers of both sexes.

The managers of this Institution are all Protestants. We have no means of ascertaining the respective numbers of the children of the different religious persuasions.

They were divided among the Provinces, as follows :—

	Schools.	Taught by voluntary Teachers.	Attended by Scholars.
In ULSTER - - - - -	1,193	9,471	125,272

	1,640	12,578	157,184

There is also extensive catechetical instruction given on Sundays, in the Roman Catholic chapels.

The practice appears to be very general, especially in the Roman Catholic districts.

In these Schools, as already stated in our First Report, the children are taught their prayers and various catechisms; sometimes by the Roman Catholic schoolmasters of the vicinity, who are collected for that purpose, and sometimes by young persons, of both sexes, under the inspection and direction of the Roman Catholic priests. The con-fraternities, which form the Society, denominated The Sodality of the Christian Doctrine, are particularly employed for this purpose. The number of children so instructed we have no means of ascertaining.

It would, however, be a mistake to consider all the children instructed, either in the Protestant or Roman Catholic Sunday Schools, as constituting an addition to those who attend the day Schools above enumerated. A very large proportion of the children, no doubt, attend some of the other Schools also, but many of them receive no other instruction than that which the Sunday Schools supply.

There are some other points of view, under which it may be desirable that the Schools of Ireland should be now considered.

The first is, as to the extent of Local Patronage that is exercised in their direction and superintendence.

The resident Gentry of Ireland, and the Clergy of all descriptions, have, of late years, evinced an increasing interest on this subject; and at the time of making the Returns, there were founded by individual patrons, and wholly supported by them (exclusive of Sunday Schools :)—

	Schools.	Attended by Scholars.
According to the Returns of the Protestant, amended by those of the Roman Catholic Clergy - - - - -	322	13,686
According to the Returns of the Roman Catholic, amended by those of the Protestant Clergy - - - - -	322	13,528

There were also partly maintained by such individuals, and, in many instances, also assisted by various societies (exclusive of Sunday Schools :)—

	Schools.	Attended by Scholars.
According to the Returns of the Protestant, amended by those of the Roman Catholic Clergy - - - - -	2,332	138,474
According to the Returns of the Roman Catholic, amended by those of the Protestant Clergy - - - - -	2,332	138,214

These details afford a striking illustration of the extent to which local patronage and superintendence is employed; and of the willingness of the patrons to accept the aid, and conform to the regulations of the several societies, according to the views they may entertain of the merits of their respective systems.

It appears to us also to be important to ascertain, in what degree the reading of the Scriptures formed a part of the various instruction, which is thus supplied to the lower ranks of the Irish people.

It appears from the Returns, that (exclusive of the Sunday Schools),—

	Schools.
The Scriptures were read in - - - - -	6,058
— - - not read in - - - - -	3,322
And the Returns are silent, as to - - -	2,443
TOTAL Number of Schools - - -	11,823

Of the 6,058 Schools in which they are stated to be read :—

	Schools.
The authorized Version was used in - - - - -	4,472
The Douay Version in - - - - -	401
Both Versions, concurrently, in - - - - -	669
And the Returns do not specify which Version in - - - - -	516
	6,058

In the three Classes of Schools under the superintendence of the Roman Catholic Clergy; namely, the Schools of the Christian Brotherhood, and those connected with religious orders; the Schools attached to Nunneries; and the Roman Catholic Day Schools; containing altogether, as above stated, 422 Schools, and 46,963 Children;—

	Schools.
The Scriptures were read in - - - - -	87
— - - not read in - - - - -	249
And the Returns are silent as to - - - - -	86
	422

The same proportion, however, does not apply to other Schools, of which the Master or Mistress happens to be a Roman Catholic. With reference to this point, it appears by the Returns, that there were 7,569 other Schools (besides the 422 above mentioned) under the direction of Roman Catholic Masters or Mistresses. In these :—

	Schools.
The Scriptures were read in - - - - -	2,607
— - - not read in - - - - -	2,886
And the Returns are silent as to - - - - -	2,076
	7,569

It is to be observed, that in this respect the practice varies very much in the different provinces of Ireland.

In Ulster there were 1,466 Schools, under Roman Catholic Masters and Mistresses. In these :—

	Schools.
The Scriptures were read in - - - - -	1,119
— - - not read in - - - - -	200

In Leinster there were 2,486 Schools, under Roman Catholic Masters and Mistresses. In these :—

The Returns are silent as to - - - - -	661
	2,486

In Munster there were 2,777 Schools, under Roman Catholic Masters and Mistresses. In these :—

	Schools.

The Returns are silent as to	910
	2,777

In Connaught there were 1,262 Schools, under Roman Catholic Masters and Mistresses. In these :—

	Schools.

— not read in	485
The Returns are silent as to	444
	1,262

ANOTHER point of view in which Education in Ireland may be considered, is, the rapidity of its progress.

In 1811 the Commissioners of Education, in their Fourteenth Report, expressed their opinion that the number of Schools in Ireland was about 4,600, attended by about 200,000 children.

The following Table exhibits a Comparison of the State of Education, as it appeared to the Commissioners in 1811, and as it stood in 1824, according to the Returns made to us.

	At the Close of the Year 1811.	At the Close of the Year 1824.
Total Number of Schools	4,600	11,823
Attended by Scholars	200,000	560,549

A detailed Comparison of the State of the various Societies at these two periods, is not less striking.

	At the Close of the Year 1811.	At the Close of the Year 1824.
	Schools.	Schools.
The Association for Discountenancing Vice, appears to have had	38	226
The Trustees of Erasmus Smith	8	113
The Kildare-Place Society	{ not in existence. }	919
The London Hibernian Society	38	618
The Baptist Society*	{ not in existence. }	88

* From the Total-number of Schools in connection with these five Societies in 1824, a deduction must be made of 392, in consequence of so many having been connected with more than one of them, and which are therefore reckoned twice.

	At the Close of the Year 1811.	At the Close of the Year 1824.
Schools connected with sundry religious Orders - - - - -	Not ascertained.
Schools connected with Nunneries - - -
Free Roman Catholic Schools, founded by Congregational Collections, and superintended by the Roman Catholic Clergy - - - - -		422

If this Comparison be extended to the Sunday School Society, it will be found they had,

	In 1811.	In 1824.
Schools - - - - -	44	1,640

ANOTHER point of view in which it may be desirable to consider these Schools, is with respect to the Average number of Scholars receiving Education in a School of each of the classes above enumerated. We mean the number in the course of receiving Education, and not merely the number who upon any particular day may be found collected in the School-room.

In the Pay-Schools the Average number was the lowest, being, as deduced, from the Returns of the—

Protestant Clergy - - - - -	42
From the Returns of the Roman Catholic Clergy - - -	43

This coincides with the opinion expressed in the Fourteenth Report of the Commissioners of Education, that at that time, (namely, in the year 1811) 43 was the Average number of Scholars in the Pay-Schools of Ireland.

IN THE SCHOOLS OF THE BAPTIST SOCIETY.

The Average was, as deduced:—

(.2.3) From the Returns of the Protestant Clergy - - -	49 $\frac{1}{4}$
(.2.2) From the Returns of the Roman Catholic Clergy - - -	52

ASSOCIATION FOR DISCOURTENANCING VICE.

From the Returns of the Roman Catholic Clergy	-	79 $\frac{1}{2}$

ROMAN CATHOLIC DAY SCHOOLS,

Superintended, as above stated, by the Priests.

Average, as deduced :—

From the Returns of the Protestant Clergy	-	95 $\frac{1}{2}$
From the Returns of the Roman Catholic Clergy	-	96

ROMAN CATHOLIC FEMALES SCHOOLS, attached to Nunneries.

Average, as deduced :—

From the Returns of the Protestant Clergy	-	155
From the Returns of the Roman Catholic Clergy	-	164 $\frac{1}{2}$

SCHOOLS OF THE CHRISTIAN BROTHERHOOD, and of Sundry Religious Orders.

Average, as deduced :—

From the Returns of the Protestant Clergy	-	227
From the Returns of the Roman Catholic Clergy	-	231

SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

Average, as deduced from the Reports of the Society - 95 $\frac{1}{2}$

IT is necessary, however, to recollect, that the above Averages were considerably affected by the withdrawing the Roman Catholic Children from certain classes of Schools, immediately previous to the period to which these Returns refer.

It is probable also, that the same cause operated to augment the Averages of other classes of Schools to which a part of the Children so withdrawn may have been transferred.

Appendix, N° 16.

LETTER from Joseph Devonsher Jackson, Esq. Secretary to the Society for Promoting the Education of the Poor of Ireland, dated Kildare-Place, Dublin, 31st December 1825.

Sir,

Appendix,
N° 16.

I AM directed by the Committee of the Society for promoting the Education of the Poor of Ireland, to acquaint you, that they have perused in part the voluminous evidence taken before the Commissioners of Education Inquiry; and it appearing that certain matters are therein stated upon oath, which, if not fully explained, might leave on the minds of the Commissioners and of the Public, erroneous impressions with respect to the conduct of the committee, I have been instructed to communicate to you, without delay, the following observations, which you will be so good as to lay before the Commissioners.

In Mr. Donelan's evidence, the committee find some general statements, and also some remarks on particular cases, which appear to require immediate attention; but in adverting to his testimony, the committee think it right to premise, that of his accuracy and correctness upon matters within his own knowledge, they have the fullest conviction, and they have only to regret, that he should have been examined upon points with which he had not at the time the means of being fully acquainted. Of the first, Mr. Donelan's evidence respecting the mode in which gratuities have been awarded, has occasioned much surprize to the committee: he is represented as stating (page 498), that the gratuities have been latterly awarded, he understands, "by the office, and not by a committee;" he explains the term "office," to "mean" the persons under the immediate control of Mr. Topham, the assistant secretary; and in page 499, he expresses a doubt, whether the reports of their officers were laid before the committee, and appears uncertain, whether the committee, even nominally, gave their approbation of the gratuities, the tendency of his evidence being altogether, that this important business was left to the clerks.

The manner in which the business of awarding gratuities is transacted, is as follows:—The inspector's reports of all the schools are laid before the correspondence sub-committee, by whom they are carefully examined; the conduct of the teachers, and the gratuities awarded them in the preceding year, are taken into consideration; and it is not until after a view of the circumstances of each particular case, the extent of the school, the proficiency of the children, the conduct of the teacher, the adherence to the principles and regulations of the Society, and any special features of the case, that the sum to be granted is estimated; the award is then authenticated by the initials of a member of the sub-committee, affixed to each school on the lists prepared in the office, and which lists are drawn out to save mechanical labour, but in no respect to relieve the committee from the responsibility or the labour of exercising their judgment in each case; the sub-committee then bring these lists before the general committee, with a recommendation, that the gratuities allotted by them be confirmed; and if sanctioned by the general committee, the gratuities are remitted to the patrons of the school, to be paid to the teachers accordingly, if they agree in their propriety. In support of his impression of the inadequate manner in which he supposed the awarding of gratuities had been chequed, Mr. Donelan refers to the cases of the Tinahely and the Villa schools (pages 497, 498); and not being aware of all the steps which the committee had adopted in these instances, he concludes, that gratuities were improperly and carelessly granted to the teachers thereof. In the Tinahely school, he states, that the master was found by him instructing the Protestant children in their catechism during school hours, but that, notwithstanding this irregularity, the master received the same gratuity as was given in the preceding year.

Now, the accompanying documents, marked (A.), will demonstrate, that shortly after the inspector's report of the Tinahely school was received, a communication was made to the patron of the school, the Rev. J. Symes, a respectable clergyman; and by his answer, the facts appeared to be, that not a Roman Catholic child had attended on the day of inspection, that the master had been unwell, and had therefore dismissed the school on that day a little earlier than usual, that as there were Protestant children alone in attendance, he began immediately to lecture them in the catechism, and that his general conduct had been correct and exemplary. On a review of all these circumstances, the committee made an order to grant him, not (as Mr. Donelan erroneously supposes) the same amount of gratuity he had received in the preceding year, but only the one half thereof; so strongly did the committee mark their disapprobation of even what appeared an unintentional violation of their regulations; and on referring to the books of the society, the gratuities awarded to this teacher are as follows:—In 1819, 10*l.*; 1820, 7*l.* 10*s.*; 1821, 7*l.* 10*s.*; 1822, 7*l.* 10*s.*; 1823, 10*l.*; and in 1824, only 5*l.*

The case of the Villa school equally demonstrates the attention which the committee pay to the claims for gratuities; as to this school, Mr. Donelan states, that books of a religious nature nature were found by him in the school, but that here also a gratuity was awarded, notwithstanding this deviation from the regulations.

The papers (B.) (herewith transmitted), exhibit the fact to be, that on receipt of the inspector's report, an immediate communication was made to the patron, whose answer shows, that the book complained of, "Secker's Pastoral Care," had been inadvertently brought into the school by one of the girls, to be used to hold thread between the leaves, and that it was not used in any other way. Upon this explanation, and on a review of the favourable circumstances in the report, the moderate gratuity of 5*l.* was awarded to the master.

In confirmation of the statement already made, as to the care and attention of the committee in awarding gratuities, it is observable, that in the several instances mentioned by Mr. Donelan, of violation of the rules of the Society, the committee either caused the deviation to be corrected, or thenceforward withheld all aid of every description from the schools.

Mr. Donelan reported, that in the Shannon Vale school, the school was opened with extempore prayer, and that comments on the Scriptures were given during school hours. Papers (C.) show, that the patron was forthwith called upon for explanation, that the call was repeated; and it appearing, on explanation, that all irregularities had been corrected, the school was continued in connection with the Society, but no gratuity was awarded to the teacher.

The deviations reported in the conduct of the Castlemagnor school were also immediately noticed; but although repeatedly called upon, the patron has never sent any explanation, and, in consequence, no further aid or gratuity has been from that time issued to this school.

As to the instances of tracts, stated by Mr. Donelan to have been found in certain schools not named by him, in cupboards (sometimes open and sometimes locked) appropriated to the use of schools, I am to state, that the committee have carefully investigated the several cases of deviation in the county of Westmeath schools, and that they find in the handwriting of their lamented brother member, the late Mr. Charles Fox, strong minutes on each of the reports. A correspondence ensued with the patrons of the schools, in consequence of these minutes, which is too voluminous to trouble the Commissioners with, unless they should desire to see the whole or any portion of it, with reference to any particular case; but the committee beg to refer the Commissioners to the detailed returns supplied to them according to their printed form, which give a summary of each case; and it may be enough to state, that gratuities were withheld in all instances of deviation from the regulations of the Society, except where such deviation appeared to have been trivial, or to have occurred through inadvertence or ignorance, and upon an assurance given, that the error should be corrected, and not repeated.

The same may be stated as to the Leitrim school, which at the time of Mr. Donelan's visit was irregular and badly attended, but on subsequent inspection is reported to have been in a flourishing state (notwithstanding violent opposition), and conducted strictly according to our principles and regulations. A few cases of a similar description, respecting deviations, are stated in the evidence of Mr. Griffith, and appear to require some observation.

1st.—The Loughgur school, under the patronage of Count De Salis, is certainly not conducted according to the principles of the Society. Repeated communications have been addressed to the patron, but owing to his absence on the Continent, no answer has been received from him; and since the deviations have been ascertained, no grant or gratuity has been made to the school,

2d.—With the circumstances relating to the Ennistymond school the Commissioners are already acquainted; it is only necessary to add, that on the 12th day of August last, a letter was addressed to Mr. O'Loughlin, urging the giving up of the furniture, for which a grant had been made to him; and that the Roman Catholic clergyman, acting for him, peremptorily refused to give it up, (a copy of his letter is forwarded herewith;) the committee have ordered that the school should be struck off the books of the Society, not considering it expedient to take any proceedings at law to recover the furniture so withheld.

The cases of the Ennis, Scariff, Ballyear and Dunmore schools, had all been minutely inquired into, previous to the award of gratuities to their masters. If the Commissioners wish for further information, copies of all the papers relative thereto shall be supplied them.

One more subject of a general nature, and of considerable importance, remains to be noticed.

Respecting the numbers of children returned, as receiving education in the schools of the Society, the committee observe, that both in Mr. Donelan's evidence, and in the body of the Report, some doubt is thrown upon the accuracy of this return; and the report seems to complain of a difficulty, found in obtaining from the committee exact returns of the number of children in attendance. The committee feel it imperative upon them to endeavour to remove this doubt and imputation, being convinced that the numbers stated in their return

Appendix,
N^o 16,

do not exceed the truth; and that in almost every case in their schools, the number on the roll exhibits the fair number of children receiving the benefit of education therein. It is obvious, that in country schools the average attendance will always greatly fall short of the true number receiving education in the school, inasmuch as different individuals attend on different days of the week, and at different seasons of the year. It is also obvious, that the number present at inspection will be below the truth, and this especially in our schools, where previous notice is not given of the inspector's visit, and where the period of inspection often occurs at seed or harvest time, when the children are occupied at home, and cannot attend the schools, as abundantly appears from the inspector's reports; indeed it must be admitted, that to obtain returns critically accurate of the number of children educated in country day schools, would be almost impossible, on account of the ever-fluctuating state of those schools; but the committee, after much anxious inquiry and examination of their inspectors, are fortified in their opinion, that the number stated by them in their annual report of January 1825, of children receiving education in their schools within the preceding year, viz. 100,000, was rather under than over the truth; and they beg to refer the Commissioners to their detailed returns, supplied on the 4th day of June last, in corroboration thereof. In further proof, the committee beg to state, that they have referred to the books of the model school in Dublin, where the roll is verified and corrected every three months with the most scrupulous accuracy. The average numbers on the roll, for the year ending June 1825 (when the last detailed report was sent in to the Commissioners), were 697, the attendance 358. Now, admitting the same proportion for country schools, where the number inspected was 43,207, the effectives on the rolls would be arithmetically deducted to be 84,120, an amount not much inferior to 91,244, the number returned, exclusive of 313 schools, whose returns were not received at that time. The attendance in country schools may be fairly presumed more fluctuating than that of the scholars in the Dublin model schools; and hence it is clear, that the effectives on the rolls of country schools would bear even a greater proportion to the average attendance, or the numbers appearing at inspection; thus completely confirming the committee in the opinion, that 100,000 is as nearly as can be attained, the true number receiving instruction in their schools within this period.

The case of the Carrignavan school, which seems to have made a deep impression on Mr. Donelan's mind (page 500), is of a very peculiar description, and hence does not form a proper basis for a general calculation. In proof of this, I am directed to transmit a copy of Mr. Donelan's inspection report of this school, by which it will appear, that on the day previous to the inspection, the school had been denounced by the parish priest, in consequence of which not one scholar attended in the female school; and that in the boys school only 15 were present, of an average attendance of 40. I also transmit a copy of Mr. Mills's report of the same schools in the preceding year, giving the numbers in the male school on the roll 139, present 42; average attendance, 60. And in the female school, on the roll 74, present 40; average attendance, 44. The disproportion of the attendance to the numbers on the rolls in these schools will appear to have been unusually great, and to have arisen from the violent opposition of the Roman Catholic clergy.

As to the Brickfield school, it will appear that Mr. Donelan is mistaken in his conjecture (page 501), and that the numbers returned are, on the books 45, at inspection 29; average 38. A very just proportion.

The committee regret exceedingly, that these mistaken statements have been published under the sanction of the Commissioners of Education Inquiry, without having been communicated to them, or an examination of some of their members having been instituted upon the subject; in their present shape, they must tend to produce an unfavourable impression upon the public mind, and will afford to the uncandid opposers of the Society ground for assertions, plausible in appearance, but in reality destitute of foundation.

The committee therefore trust, that the Commissioners will excuse this intrusion upon their time; and that a sense of justice towards the Society will prompt the Commissioners to give, on the first opportunity, the same publicity to these observations which has been given to the evidence to which they apply.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

Queries.—1. Is there any deviation from the principles of the Society in conducting the school?—if so, in what particular?

Answers.—I found the master teaching the Church of England catechism during school hours.

2. Are the scholars neat and clean?

Tolerably.

3. Are they taught to read and spell by the improved methods of teaching?

They are.

4. Is there any account of the proficiency and attendance of the scholars kept in the school? If so, is such kept in a neat manner? Ascertain whether there be any book kept for entering the daily attendance of scholars, and also for writing observations of visitors? If any such be kept, extract any observations therefrom that shall appear important.

Register and daily report, which were tolerably neat.

5. Are the movements of the scholars performed with regularity?

Tolerably.

6. Is the teacher's conduct in school likely to create respect, and to promote neatness and regularity?

I cannot say I was much pleased with the conduct of the master, as I conceive he knowingly violated the laws of the Society. His income was as follows:—7*l.* Mr. Hague; 15*l.* Capel-street Society; 11*l.* scholars; 10*l.* gratuity; annual average payment of scholars, 10*l.*; present rate, 2*d.* per week.

7. On what subjects did you leave memorandums for the teacher's attention?

More attention to the laws of the Society.

8. How is the school supplied with books? State any that may appear to be wanting?

None wanting.

Appendix,
N° 16,
continued.

9. How many copies of the Bible or Testament are provided for the use of the school?

There are six copies of the authorized Version of the Testament.

10. State the name and residence of the correspondent for the school?

Mr. Symes, Tinahely.

11. In what state of repair is the school-room? State dimensions, also whether it is light and well ventilated, and how fitted up?

The repairs are good; the dimensions 34 by 18; the light and ventilation good; the furniture consists of seven desks, and 15 seats.

12. State such other circumstances relating to the school, or to the state of education in the surrounding neighbourhood, as you may deem necessary for the information of the committee?

I conceive it my duty to state, that the conduct of the master, with regard to the teaching of the catechism, was such as to call for my fullest disapprobation. This is a parochial school.

Endorsement on Report.

Express surprise that the regulations of the Society should have been departed from in this school, which has been so long connected with, and so frequently and liberally assisted by the Society. Call for explanation.

A satisfactory explanation given by Rev. Mr. Symes. (See N° 12 of Proceeding, 5th January 1825.)

Sir,

Dublin, 30th December 1824.

(A.) 2.

IT appearing from the inspector's report, that he found the master of the Tinahely school teaching catechism during school hours, I am directed to express the committee's surprise, that such a deviation from the principles of the Society should have been found to exist in a school so long connected therewith, and which has so repeatedly received liberal tokens of the committee's approbation. I am also directed to request you will, as soon as possible, acquaint the committee with the circumstances that have led to this violation of the Society's regulations, so contrary to the repeated pledges given in the answers to our queries, that catechisms and all books inculcating peculiar religious opinions should be excluded from the school during school-hours, and on faith of which the school has been so liberally and frequently assisted, but which the committee regret to state, cannot in future be the case, without a more satisfactory explanation be given than they are at present enabled to anticipate.

LETTER from the Rev. J. M. Symes, curate of Kilcommon, to Joseph Devonsher Jackson, Esquire.

Sir,

(A.) 3.

I BEG leave to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 30th ultimo. In answer to which I inclose, for the satisfaction of the committee, the explanation of the master of the Tinahely school, relative to his conduct on the 20th of December last, the day on which his school was visited by the Society's inspector, all the particulars of which he is willing, if necessary, to attest on oath.

I have been for the last three years and upwards the superintendent of Tinahely school, during which period I can safely affirm, I never before knew him to violate the principles of your Society in the smallest degree, nor do I think he would have done so in this instance, had he not been ill, and dismissed the children earlier than usual, by which means he began to teach catechism a few minutes before the proper hour. However, you will observe, that the school was previously dismissed, and that not one Roman Catholic child attended it on that day. I can certify, that the master had not been well for some days previous and subsequent to the visit of Mr. Donelan.

This is the first time I have ever had occasion to find fault with the conduct of the master of Tinahely school, and I hope it will be the last, as it has hitherto been invariably unexceptionable tionable, and has given the greatest satisfaction not only to the superintendent, but to the parents of the children of every persuasion who attended his school.

Hoping that the explanation of his conduct thus given may be deemed sufficient by the Society, and that they will not withdraw from the Tinahely school that aid which they have hitherto so liberally and frequently afforded.

I have the honour to remain, Sir,

Your obliged and very faithful servant,

Ballybeg, January 3, 1825.

(A.) 4.

LETTER from Mr. Thomas Paslow, Master of Tinahely School, to the Rev. J. M. Symes.

Reverend Sir,

Tinahely, 1st January 1825.

(A.) 4.

IN answer to the report made by the inspector to the Society for Promoting the Education of the Poor of Ireland, that on the day of his late inspection he found me teaching the catechism during school-hours, contrary to the regulations of that Society;

I beg to state, that I never intended in the smallest degree to transgress their rules in that way, nor in any way whatsoever. I have no doubt you were greatly surprised to hear such a report of me, and I believe it is the first complaint you have heard of me these ten years past, which I have conducted Tinahely school. I shall state the cause of the complaint, and hope you will be pleased to pardon my inadvertence, and recommend me to the forgiveness of the Society, a Society which you know I have respected, and whose rules I have adhered to, sometimes apparently to my loss in *pecuniary matters, and never consulting my ease, but, as far as I was capable of, extending the blessings of education to all the poor who would receive it, without any exception whatever.

On the 20th December last, Mr. Donelan, the inspector, came to Tinahely school, and was pleased to examine the scholars that were present; he retired about twenty minutes before three o'clock, according to the watch by which my school hours were governed. I then in the report book noted the day and circumstances of the inspection, and after making some explanations, I dismissed the school, guessing at the time from my former observations. The day was cold, the snow falling, and for three weeks my health but indifferent; however, as usual, I invited any children who thought proper to wait for catechism, and as they were beginning to repeat it, Mr. Donelan returned, and declared I had broken the regulations of the Society, as it was not three o'clock. I examined, and found to my astonishment it wanted five minutes of three.

These, Sir, are the circumstances leading to the above report, which, though I must acknowledge to be a source of uneasiness to my mind, for having given any cause of complaint, yet I cannot see that any harm could accrue by giving the children leave five minutes before the time, as there was no Roman Catholic child in the school on that day; this Mr. Donelan knows, as he questioned every child in the catechism class individually, Are you a Roman Catholic? Is your father a Roman Catholic? Is your mother a Roman Catholic? and received from every child a negative answer.

I have also to remark, that the room in which the school is held, though very commodious, is certainly cold in frosty weather, owing to five large open arches underneath the school-room, which admit the air, and that air forcing through crevices in the flooring, chills the children unless very warmly clothed; a fire cannot fully prevent this effect, and consequently, as these things are known to the parents, the school is not so well attended in the winter as in the summer, and, of course, a winter inspection of this school is not favourable to a respectable report thereof. This I have experienced; of 186 children which were entered on the register list, and for some time received instruction in this school, within the year 1824, only 23 of them attended on the day of inspection, and even of this small number, some had gone to dinner at their parents request, before the inspector came, and four of the small number examined were not regular attendants; from the first to the last day of the year there was not so unfavourable a day for inspection as to numbers; and to a man on whose character he depends for subsistence for self and family, it is not pleasing to have that character injured, therefore I beg you will excuse the length of my apology under the present circumstances.

Another remark, and then I am done, as to Roman Catholics. I am not afraid to have my conduct investigated in the closest manner. I have never interfered with the religion of their children, as is well known to you, Sir, who visited their houses at the time they were withdrawn from my school, and of 112 children who received instruction free of all expense within the last year, a regular proportion was of that religion, and not one of them refused who offered to attend. The report which drew from me this long explanation shall for the future guard me against a breach of rules of the Society, either in the spirit or in the letter, and—

Believe me, Reverend Sir, Your dutiful humble servant,

Queries.—1. IS there any deviation from the principles of the Society in conducting the school? if so, in what particular?

Answer.—On asking the master if he read the Scriptures, he replied, he substituted the selections for them. When I told him this was not in compliance with the regulations, he and Miss Herbert (the patroness) both stated, that the Scriptures were read. Where the truth lies, amidst these contradictory answers, I cannot say; for further information, see last query.

2. Are the scholars neat and clean?

They are.

3. Are they taught to read and spell by the improved methods of teaching?

Not exactly.

4. Is there any account of the proficiency and attendance of the scholars kept in the school? If so, is such kept in a neat manner? Ascertain whether there be any book kept for entering the daily attendance of scholars, and also for writing observations of visitors? If any such be kept, extract any observations therefrom that shall appear important?

Nothing but a register.

5. Are the movements of the scholars performed with regularity?

Tolerably.

6. Is the teacher's conduct in school likely to create respect, and to promote neatness and regularity?

He appears fully qualified for the situation he holds.

7. On what subjects did you leave memorandums for the teacher's attention?

The necessity of reading the Scriptures, of keeping regular accounts, of excluding all books of a religious or controversial nature.

8. How is the school supplied with books? State any that may appear to be wanting?

None wanting.

9. How

9. How many copies of the Bible or Testament are provided for the use of the school.

There are three Bibles, and two copies of the authorised version of the Testament.

10. State the name and residence of the correspondent for the school?

Miss Herbert, Villa, Carrick on Suir.

11. In what state of repair is the school-room? State dimensions; also, whether it is light and well ventilated, and how fitted up?

The repairs are good; the dimensions 30 by 12; the lights and ventilation good, and the furniture consists of five desks and seats.

12. State such other circumstances relating to the school, or to the state of education in the surrounding neighbourhood, as you may deem necessary for the information of the committee?

On examining, I found the following books lying openly on a table in the school-room: Sermons, by Wilford; Pastoral Care, for the use of Protestants, and H. More's Moral Tracts; the two first are clearly inconsistent with the regulations of the Society; but upon the latter, I offer no opinion, not being acquainted with the contents of the book.

(Endorsement on Report.)

Write to Miss Herbert to mention Inspector's Report, and to state the necessity of removing all such books, as Sermons, Pastoral Care, and also to request to know the Works of Hannah More, which were found in the school; and further, that no gratuity could be granted to the master, until the above is attended to.

LETTER from the Assistant Secretary to the Society for Promoting the Education of the Poor of Ireland, to Miss Herbert.

Society for Promoting the Education of the Poor of Ireland.

Madam,

Dublin, 7th July, 1824.

IT appearing from the inspector's report, that books of a controversial character had been introduced into the Villa School, and that it appeared doubtful, whether the Scripture lessons had not been used as a substitute for the Scriptures, I am directed to inform you, that the rules of the Society require, that in all schools deriving aid from its funds, the Bible or Testament, either of the authorized or Douay version, without note or comment, written or oral, should be read by such of the children as have attained a suitable proficiency in reading. And that catechisms and all books including peculiar religious opinions, should be excluded during school hours. And I have to inform you, that the use of the Scripture lessons, or of any other selections, however excellent in themselves they may be, is not considered a compliance with the rule, which requires the Scriptures to be read. And, also, that the use of Sermons, Pastoral Care, or any other book inculcating peculiar religious opinions, is considered to be a violation of the rule which requires, that catechisms and all books inculcating peculiar religious opinions, should be excluded during school hours.

In conclusion, I have to state, that the committee hope to receive a satisfactory assurance, that in future the principles of the Society shall be undeviatingly adhered to in the management of the school; without which they can neither order payment of the grant outstanding, or award a gratuity to the teacher.

I am, Madam, your obedient servant,

To Miss Herbert.

(B.) 3.

LETTER from Miss Herbert, to the Assistant Secretary to the Society for Promoting the Education of the Poor of Ireland.

Sir,

Villa Sunday and Week-day School.

I HAVE been greatly annoyed by receiving from my sister, a copy of your letter, written by order of the Kildare-place committee, and containing charges of serious accusation against the conductors of Villa school; charges, which, if substantiated, would not only render the conductors unworthy of the protection of the committee, but would also criminate them in the eyes of that Superior Power who will bring every hidden thing to light, and judge every man according to their works. As an accountable creature to that great Searcher of Hearts, and feeling an anxious solicitude to satisfy the minds of the committee, that the conductors of Villa school have not, in a single instance, intentionally violated their rules, and to prevent every shadow of doubt and suspicion in future, I beg leave to submit, for the consideration of the committee, the simple truth, in the following detail:

A a 2

1st

(B.) 3.

Appendix,
N^o 16,
continued.

1st Charge.—“ That books of a controversial character have been introduced into the Villa school.” The fact is undeniable in one solitary instance; but not, I most solemnly protest, for the purpose of inculcating peculiar religious opinions; that Secker’s Pastoral Care was found by the committee’s inspector, is admitted. To account for this paradox, I beg leave to state, that my dear respected father had been for many years rector of the parish of Carrick-upon-Suir; that he had a large collection of books of divinity; some of these remained on an upper shelf of an old bookcase, which stood in the gallery leading to the school-room; and one of the children being in want of a thread-case, climbed up the bookshelf, and took from thence the Pastoral Care, which she heedlessly and most improperly converted to this use. Such is the report of the work-mistress, corroborated by the girls, who unanimously declare, that this book was employed in no other service.

2d Charge.—“ That it appeared doubtful, whether the Scripture lessons had not been used as a substitute for the Bible.” In refutation to this charge, I can only affirm, that the Bible was the foundation on which I raised my little school; that the Bible was my sun and shield, to enlighten, quicken and support me in what I considered the way of duty; and that the Bible without note or comment, was and is required to be read by all the children who have attained a suitable proficiency.

In committing to my sister’s management the care of the school during necessary interval of absence, I concluded I effectually advanced its best interest, by consigning it to abler hands, the justness of which conclusion has been clearly demonstrated by the rapid improvement of the scholars, evident to every visitor, and by none more noticed or seemingly applauded, than by the Kildare-place inspector.

I trust that these explanations will sufficiently satisfy the Board, that no such errors and abuses, as we have been charged with, have crept into our school; and that the sacred volume of inspiration, so far from remaining unopened and disregarded on our shelves, has been in daily and hourly requisition.

I beg leave to inclose a statement of cash paid on account of furniture for Villa school, and the required certificates, signed as directed, which I hope will appear satisfactory to the committee.

Queries

Queries.—1. Is there any deviation from the principles of the Society in conducting the school? If so, in what particular?

Answers.—The Scriptures are explained by the master, and the school is opened by an extemporary prayer. On examining, I found two Common Prayer Books, and Questions for Children by Mrs. Sherwood, which I consider inconsistent with the laws of the Society.

2. Are the scholars neat and clean?

They are.

3. Are they taught to read and spell by the improved methods of teaching?

They are not.

4. Is there any account of the proficiency and attendance of the scholars kept in the school? If so, is such kept in a neat manner? Ascertain whether there be any book kept for entering the daily attendance of scholars, and also for writing observations of visitors? If any such be kept, extract any observations therefrom that shall appear important.

A register, daily report, and class lists, which are neatly kept.

5. Are the movements of the scholars performed with regularity?

They are.

6. Is the teacher's conduct in school likely to create respect, and to promote neatness and regularity?

He is an intelligent, well-conducted, zealous young man.

7. On what subjects did you leave memorandums for the teacher's attention?

A more strict adherence to the laws of the Society, and more attention to the spelling and arithmetic of the children.

8. How is the school supplied with books? State any that may appear to be wanting?

A dozen of each part of the spelling book, and a ream of paper.

9. How many copies of the Bible and Testament are provided for the use of the school?

There are seventeen copies of the authorised version of the Testament.

10. State the name and residence of the correspondent for the school?

Miss Sadlier, Shannon Vale, Clonakilty, who is at present absent from home.

11. In what state of repair is the school-room? State dimensions, also, whether it is light and well ventilated, and how fitted up?

The repairs are good, the dimensions 19 by 16, the light and ventilation indifferent, the furniture consists of 7 desks and seats.

12. State such other circumstances relating to the school, or to the state of education in the surrounding neighbourhood, as you may deem necessary for the information of the committee?

I beg leave particularly to call the particular attention of the committee to the custom which prevails in this school, viz.: of opening it with an extemporary prayer by the master; when I mentioned it, Miss Sadlier, (sister of the patroness) replied, that she thought her sister would never consent to dispense with the necessity of it. Under these circumstances, it will be necessary for the committee to take some step in order to insure an observance of their laws.

I will endeavour to see the patroness, in order to explain how this might be remedied.

(Endorsement on Report.)

State that prayers cannot be used during school hours. Also, that religious instruction should not be given in school hours.

And that no comments should be made on the Scriptures.

LETTER from the Assistant Secretary to the Society for Promoting the Education of the Poor of Ireland, to Miss Sadlier.

Madam,

Kildare-place, 27th September, 1824.

IT appearing from the Inspector's Report, that the Scriptures are explained to the children by the master in the Shannon Vale school, and that books inculcating peculiar religious opinions have been introduced during school hours; I am directed to inform you, that the rules of the Society require, that in all schools deriving aid from its funds, the Bible or Testament, either of the authorized or Douay version, should be read without note or comment, written or oral, by such of the scholars as have attained a suitable proficiency in reading, and that catechisms, and all books inculcating peculiar religious opinions, should be excluded during school hours.

It also appearing, that the school is opened with prayer, and that practice being considered at variance with the principles of the Society; I am directed to recommend, that it should either be discontinued, or that prayer should be said previous to the usual hour for commencing school business, with an explicit understanding, that attendance thereat is perfectly voluntary on the part of the children, and not at all necessary to entitle them to receive the other advantages to be derived from the school.

I am further directed to inform you, that the committee hope to receive an early intimation, that the rules of the Society will be strictly adhered to in these particulars in the management of the school; otherwise they will be compelled to withhold any aid which may in future be required for its use, and also be precluded from holding out any hope of reward to the teacher, however deserving his conduct might appear in other respects.

Miss Sadlier,

LETTER from the Assistant Secretary to the Society for Promoting the Education of the Poor of Ireland, to Miss Sadlier.

Madam,

Kildare-place, 27th December, 1824.

(C.) 3.

I AM directed by the committee to call your attention to their letter of the 27th of September last, respecting the deviations from the principles of the Society, reported by the Inspector to have existed in the management of the Shannon Vale School, viz.; that it was customary to open the business of the school with a form of prayer, in which it was imperative on the children to join. That the Scriptures were explained during school hours, and that books inculcating peculiar religious opinions were also introduced.

I have also to state, that the committee hope to receive an early intimation, that the deviations alluded to have been rectified, and that the school is now and shall be conducted in strict conformity with the regulations of the Society, as otherwise they will be precluded from taking the merits of the teacher into consideration, with a view to granting him a gratuity, however deserving his conduct might appear in other particulars.

Miss Sadlier,

I am, Madam, your obedient servant,
J. Topham, Ass^t Sec^y.

(C.) 4.

LETTER from Miss Sadlier to the Assistant Secretary to the Society for Promoting the Education of the Poor of Ireland.

Sir,

Shannon Vale, February 14th, 1825.

(C.) 4.

IN answer to your communication of the 27th of December 1824, I beg leave to state, for the information of the committee, that since my return, after Mr. Donelan had made his remarks on the way in which the Shannon Vale school was conducted, prayer has not been used in school hours. The book to which he objected has been put out of the school, though I think it far from being of the description you mention, and beg leave to inclose it for inspection.

The prayer book which lay on the table was never used in the school for any purpose but to give out the psalm, and the other books which were in the room were for the master's private use, and never were used in the school. The place is particularly inconvenient, as the master has but the school-room to sit in, or keep any thing in.

As to the point of explaining the Scriptures, I confess, Sir, I find it more difficult strictly to adhere to your system, as Mr. D. said that we must not even explain the meaning of a word to a child, or in any way endeavour to bring it home to their hearts or understandings. Now, though I do not wish to inculcate peculiar religious opinions, nor to enter into controversy, I should wish to make the children understand what they read; and in order to do this, I would often find it necessary to tell them the meaning of a word. Designedly, I would not wish to swerve from any engagement into which I entered; and on my applying to your Society, in the first instance, I mentioned the method pursued in the school.

I would now propose to your Society keeping the school open every day from one till half-past three o'clock, and during that time strictly adhering to your rules. I am most anxious to obtain your support, as the school has much opposition to encounter, and is in a situation where it is particularly required. I should have said, that, as in all other schools, we break up at one o'clock on Saturdays.

As to the master, I shall only say, that I would rejoice to hear that not only every master under your Society, but every master under every Society, were equally worthy of being taken into consideration, as I do believe that his governing principle is a single eye to the glory of God. I feel I have been extremely negligent in not having answered your communication before, but shall not trouble you further, than to say, I hope to be more regular for the future.

I have been made an offer of a lease of the house, and as much ground as would enable me to build an addition to the school-room, and thereby give a kitchen and room to the master for his own use; this would be of the greatest advantage, and I request to know whether the Society would be likely to afford me any assistance towards it.

To J. Topham, Esq.

I am, Sir, your obedient humble servant,

R. Sadlier.

Society for Promoting the Education of the Poor of Ireland.

Madam,

Kildare Place, Dublin, 19th February 1825.

IN reply to your letter of the 14th instant, which has been laid before the committee, I am directed to inform you, that they fully confide in the assurances which you have given, that the practices of using prayer and of explaining the Scriptures during school hours, shall in future be discontinued, and that the rules of the Society will be strictly adhered to in the management of the Shannon Vale school.

In reference to that part of your letter respecting your intention to enlarge the school house, I am directed to request a plan and estimate of the proposed addition.

I am finally to state the hope of the committee, that such improvement will be found in the general state of the school, when next inspected, as will authorise them to award a gratuity to the master.

They are.

6. Is the teacher's conduct in the school likely to create respect, and to promote neatness and regularity?

The master is respectably qualified, and is zealous; he conducts himself well, and is anxious to promote the welfare of the school.

7. On what subjects did you leave memorandums for the teacher's attention?
None required.

8. How is the school supplied with books? State any that may appear to be wanting?
By the Education and Cork Societies.

9. How many copies of the Bible or Testament are provided for the use of the school?
Forty of the Testaments.

10. State the name and residence of the correspondent for the school?
J M'Carthy, Esq. Carrignavar, Cork.

11. In what state of repair is the school-room? State dimensions; also, whether it is light, and well ventilated, and how fitted up?

A respectable building, slated, contains two school-rooms and teacher's residence; all in good repair, and kept clean. Dimensions of males room, twenty-four feet by sixteen; has good light and ventilation, and is fitted up with desks, forms, &c.

12. State such other circumstances relating to the school, or to the state of education in the surrounding neighbourhood, as you may deem necessary for the information of the committee?

The scholars have made fair proficiency, and I am happy to add, know what they are learning. The manager is getting several improvements completed; when these are effected, and the system altogether adopted, I am convinced this will be amongst the most respectable schools throughout the country. In fact, of its complete success, there can be no doubt; for whilst established rules are scrupulously acted upon, every care is taken to avoid irritation in doing so. Connected with this most essential line, Mr. M'Carthy visits regularly.

Queries.—1. Is there any deviation from the principles of the Society in conducting the school? If so, in what particular?

Answers.—Since visiting this school I have been informed, and have reason to believe, that the school opens with a prayer; as I am informed, it is the Lord's Prayer, in which all the children are bound to join.

2. Are the scholars neat and clean?

Tolerably.

If any such be kept, extract any observations therefrom that shall appear important?

A daily roll and class paper, which were tolerably neat.

5. Are the movements of the scholars performed with regularity?

Not with as much as I could wish.

6. Is the teacher's conduct in school likely to create respect, and to promote neatness and regularity?

He is an intelligent, well-informed man, and if he had zeal in proportion to his abilities, he might have a flourishing and a well conducted school. From the want of order and silence amongst his scholars, I should fear he has not derived as much advantage from being trained in the Model School as might reasonably be expected.

7. On what subjects did you leave memorandums for the teacher's attention?

On the necessity of keeping accounts, according to the method recommended by the Society, and also to preserve more order and silence in his school. I will call at this school again to ascertain to a certainty whether it opens with any form of prayer.

11. In what state of repair is the school-room? State dimensions; also whether it is light and well ventilated, and how fitted-up?

The repairs are good; the dimensions 24 by 16; the light and ventilation good; the furniture consists of five desks and seats.

12. State such other circumstances relating to the school, or to the state of education in the surrounding neighbourhood, as you may deem necessary for the information of the committee?

The great diminution to be observed in the number of children attending this school, is to be attributed solely to the opposition of the Roman Catholic clergy. A duplicate of this has been forwarded to the Munster Society.

Answer.—There was no attendance whatever at this school when I called, owing to the R. C. Priest having on the day before publicly denounced any child that should go to this school. Mr. M'Carthy, however, entertains hopes, that in a short time the children will return. I own I have great doubts on the subject, the opposition is so extremely violent. LETTER from the Rev. J. Nowlan to J. Topham, Esq.

Sir,

Ennistymon, August 19th, 1825.

IN reply to yours of the 12th ultimo, referring me to a copy of the Rev. Mr. O'Loughlin's letter of the 14th of May last, and requesting the immediate delivery of some old furniture at the Ennistymon school, to a certain Miss Kerrin, for the use of a school at Ballyvally;—

I beg leave to inform you, that I am entirely ignorant of the condition on which Mr. O'Loughlin got the said furniture; and that as he is now in the south of France, I cannot on any account comply with your request, till I hear from him; I can, however, inform you, that from my own knowledge of this part of the country, no place is more in want of means to educate the poor, and that with the great anxiety shown by the Kildare-street Society to promote education, nothing can be more inconsistent, than even the remotest idea of being instrumental in overturning an establishment, so conducive to the literary and moral education of upwards of 500 poor children in the poorest district in Ireland.

Should you, in the mean time, wave those conditions, and urge so unreasonable a claim, let me assure you, that I am not ignorant of the reports made by the Society, in which it is said, that they contributed towards the Ennistymon male and female schools, and sooner than contradict said reports by handing over a parcel of old forms, &c., the only aid had from the Society, that I am aware of, I shall use every legal means in my power, that nothing shall be removed from the school; and in case I cannot succeed, will lose no opportunity to inform the Public, what credit is due to certain printed reports.

EXAMINATION of Joseph Devonsher Jackson, Esquire, on Oath;
Tuesday, 3d January 1826.

Appendix,
N° 17.

Examination of
J. D. Jackson,
Esq.
3 Jan. 1826.

HAVING before us a return made by the Society for promoting the Education of the Poor in Ireland in June last, of the number of schools connected with that Society, together with a particular statement of the number of scholars on the roll of each school, and number in actual attendance; and also having before us a paper, dated Kildare-place, 31st of December 1825, from which we learn, that the members of the Society for promoting the Education of the Poor in Ireland are desirous of drawing the attention of the Commissioners to several statements made by witnesses examined before this board, as to the number of scholars in attendance in those schools, we are desirous of obtaining explanation of some matters contained in this return; we believe, that the opinion of the persons who superintend the affairs of the Society for the Education of the Poor is, that about 90,000 is the actual number of children that may be considered in attendance upon their schools?—I should think that was under the mark; I think, that at the close of the year 1824, that is, up to the 5th of January 1825, it might be safely calculated, that the number amounted to not less than 100,000.

When you say that such a number were in attendance, are we to understand, that that is the actual number which is in attendance at any one day, or any one week?—By no means.

Do you mean, that the children attend irregularly and uncertainly, but that during a quarter, for instance, such a number of children have attended from time to time, some at one time, and some at another, that if the numbers be so taken, the fair aggregate would amount to 90,000?—Unquestionably, that is what is meant, the attendance might not be regular; some children attend at one season of the year, who do not attend at another; various casualties occur to prevent them from attending at certain times, and therefore the number on the rolls must necessarily exceed the number actually present on any one day, or what may be fairly called the average attendance in the schools.

Is it your impression, that within a quarter of a year, for instance, three months prior to the 31st of December 1824, that 90,000 children were actually within the Kildare-street schools, in the progress of education?—The year 1824 was a year which was very peculiarly circumstanced, and in which there probably were greater fluctuations than in any other year that could be selected; there are, therefore, less certain data to be derived from that year than from any other; but still I should say, there were 90,000, or probably 100,000, in the progress of education.

Will you have the goodness to state what, in your opinion, are the principal causes of the fluctuations to which you have alluded?—What I particularly adverted to, is the stand that was made against the schools in which the Scriptures were used, particularly those connected with our Society; there was a great deal of opposition experienced in that year, beyond any thing which the history of the institution would furnish, at any other period.

Are we to understand, that the number actually included upon the rolls would exceed 100,000?—According to my recollection; having examined the return, in consequence of the intimation I received that I was to be examined here to day, that is my opinion.

The question is particularly pointed to the present time; do you think, that at the present time there are above 100,000 upon the rolls?—My opinion is, that at the present time there are over 100,000 upon the rolls; it is right, however, to observe, that a circumstance occurred in the course of the current year, which has put out of connection with our Society a large number of schools; therefore, perhaps, I ought to correct the answer.

To what circumstance do you allude?—I allude to the notification from his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, growing out of the report made by this board, expressing his wish, that we should put all the schools connected with other Societies, that were also in connection with us, to their election, whether they would abide with us, or not.

What steps were taken upon that notification from his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant?—We issued a circular to all the schools connected with us, following up the object of his Excellency's communication; we had had that step in contemplation before that communication munication was made to us. I think I intimated, when I had the honour of being examined on a former occasion, that such a measure was considered by us as expedient; and what his Excellency was pleased to recommend to us, I think we should have adopted, even if he had not signified his wish; we accordingly sent out the circular, the consequence of which has been, that a great number of schools, some hundreds, have ceased to be connected with us, and others are in doubt, at this moment, whether they should continue connected with us, or not.

State, as nearly as you can, what is the number of schools that have withdrawn, where they are situated, and under what circumstances they have, any of them, decided upon continuing their connection with the Hibernian Society, and ceased their connection with you?—I cannot give the information in what particular parts of Ireland the schools are situate, for I think they are every where throughout Ireland, wherever connected with other Societies, and I do not think it belongs to one part of Ireland more than another; but if the Commissioners wish I will have an exact return made out. [The witness was requested to furnish the same.]

Have many schools decided to continue in connection with you?—Many have.

And have notified that determination?—They have.

Are the schools which have notified their determination of continuing in connection with you of any particular class?—I think schools belonging to each of the various classes. I do not confine myself to any particular class; there is however one entire class of schools that have abided with us, that is, those schools which were formerly under the superintendence of the Munster Hibernian Society; that Society has ceased to exist, and after having ceased their connection with the London Hibernian Society, they sent to us a copy of the resolutions which their committee had entered into, expressing a wish to form a branch of our Society in Cork, and stating, that the gentlemen who formed the committee of the other Society would be willing to form a committee connected with our Society; that the schools should be placed under their management, as a local branch committee; but we have not determined upon it at present, the Society not being willing to make an arrangement applicable to one spot alone, it having been in contemplation to form a system applicable to the whole country, of having local committees to superintend the schools; therefore we thought it premature, under existing circumstances, to enter into any arrangements with the gentlemen of Cork, until we had matured a general system adapted to the whole of the country.

Do you know, whether the gentlemen connected with the Munster Hibernian Society consider that they have the power of establishing any rules, differing from or in addition to those maintained by the Kildare-place Society?—None whatever; it is extremely difficult however to manage a communication of this sort by letter, so much so, that we requested that they would send up an official person, or one of the committee, to communicate with us upon the subject; and they sent up the secretary, who was with us last Saturday; though we did not contemplate coming to a final arrangement, we thought it necessary to have the way cleared by some previous explanations, and it was distinctly understood, and fully acquiesced in, that they should have no power of making any alteration in, or of adding any thing to our rules, or departing from the principles of the Society in any way whatever, but that they should be considered as a sub-committee, acting under our guidance and control.

Was any thing said as to the mode in which payments were to be made; for instance, would you place a sum of money in their hands, for them to distribute as they might think proper?—No, that was not at all contemplated; not even one of our sub-committees here at head quarters can disburse a shilling; they may recommend and point out proper things to be done, but it belongs to the general committee of our Society alone to make payments.

Is there an intention for them to have separate inspectors?—They express their wish to have a system of local inspection, in addition to that which is pursued by the Society; their reason was, because they considered it necessary to the well-being of the schools, that the inspections should be more frequent than ours; our inspections hitherto have been only annual, though we should wish them at least to be twice in a year. The Cork committee have been in the habit of having their schools inspected quarterly, which they think of great importance. We are disposed to think so too, and we have had it in contemplation to form an additional system of inspection to take place, not by that class of men who are now employed as inspectors, but by a class of persons who would do it at a considerably less expense, and who should be controlled by our general inspectors periodically. We have had that plan in consideration for some time.

Do you not think, that an alteration of the rules, and a departure from the principles of the Society, would creep in if there were subordinate authorities?—It certainly would require vigilance; it is not an easy matter to check and control operations going forward in every part of the country.

Is there not a large portion of the schools under the direction of the London Hibernian Society, which are more particularly in connection with persons who live in Sligo?—Yes, I believe it is there that they have their head-quarters.

Have many of those schools decided to continue in connection with the Kildare-place Society?—I cannot speak precisely from memory; I would say, however, that there are many of the schools which have given us this kind of answer; we prefer your principles to those of any other Society, but we derive permanent aid from other quarters in support of our schools, such as the support of our masters; you have not hitherto given any salary, but only a gratuity; if you would give us a permanent support for our masters, we would prefer you; but this we cannot do, not having the means; if we could do it, we would in proper cases.

In referring to the list of schools which was returned to this board, dated June 1825, the board see that there are a certain number of schools to which a particular mark is affixed, which were not going forward at the time they were visited by the Society, after the inspector's visit; have the goodness to explain upon what principle such schools, which were not going forward at the time, were afterwards assisted.—I see, that against some, named in the return, now lying before me, there is an asterisk; the note to which it refers, is this, "The number thus marked (*) are taken from the answers to the queries; the schools to which they are affixed, were either not going forward at the time they were visited, or they were assisted by the Society, after the inspector had visited; I should say, that the principle upon which they were inserted in the return, was this; we were called upon by the letter which we received from the Commissioners, (of which the heading of the document now before me is an echo), to give in a list of all the schools now in connection with the Society for promoting the Education of the Poor of Ireland, specifying such schools as are at the same time connected with other associations, societies, charitable foundations or institutions, as far as the same can be ascertained, together with a statement of the number of scholars on the roll of each school, the numbers in actual attendance at the period of the last inspection, and the average number attending each school, according to the latest reports of the inspectors."

Are you of opinion, that it appears necessary from that which you have just stated, that you should return a school that is not in existence?—Certainly not, but though schools were not in existence at the time the inspector visited the district, it appears that they had come into existence after the inspector had passed.

The answer which you have given goes to one particular class; but if you look at the description of the schools marked by asterisks, it will be found that they are divided into two classes, the first of which is described as not being in existence; the question particularly applies to those which are described as not going forward at the time?—They happened to be closed from some cause or other at the time the inspector visited; of course we had not the materials to fill up the return, in the way in which it was required.

What means had the Society of knowing that such schools, though closed, were in effectual operation?—There are various means; we may have had subsequent correspondence, as well as correspondence preceding, and we may have found them closed in some instances in consequence of the sickness of the master, which would be an accidental and a temporary cause, or in other instances, the children may have been taken away, in order to perform a certain kind of work going forward at a particular season; in some instances, I dare say, there was no report, because the school-house was not erected, and in all such cases the inspector was not able to see the books, so as to make such a return as was required; the masters also, in many cases, were at Kildare-street for instruction.

Are there any schools represented to be in existence, which in point of fact, were not erected at the time of inspection?—A good many of them.

Will you have the goodness to state on what ground they are included?—Because, though not erected at the time the inspector visited them, they were erected subsequently, and many of them were in operation afterwards; the visit of the inspector was long prior to this return; we had made our grants for building, and they were in progress, and we concluded, that with reference to them they ought to be included as existing schools.

Is it possible, in any case, that a school could be set down as one in which children were in attendance, which could not be so in point of fact, inasmuch as the school was not at the time in existence?—I think it was possible, in some cases.

In many cases?—Indeed, I am not able to state precisely, how many there may be.

Do you think that there are any schools included in the list, which you believe, not being in operation at the time of the visit of the inspector, had been, in point of fact, wholly discontinued and abandoned?—There may be a few of that description, but I am not aware that there are; there are two or three, I observed, in looking over the list, where it is stated in the column of observations, that they had ceased to be in connection with the Society; for example, the Ennistymond, and I believe also the Tuam school.

Is the Society in possession of the means of making an accurate list of the schools you have described, free from any error arising from those sources?—From the nature of the thing, I take it, there must be an imperfection in every return; of course, the return is made from such documents as we have, and in this country more so, perhaps, than in any other, there is a certain degree of laxity to be found in the management of such concerns; I suppose in every place there is some; but I know there is a great deal in this country; it may probably arise in part, from the class of people employed as schoolmasters, particularly those who have not been trained, but who are of the old school; there is an inaccurate mode of doing things, so that it is extremely difficult to get from them any thing like a satisfactory return; the Society being called upon by this board to make a return, we were obliged to do so in the best way we could do it, from the documents before us, and we have stated in a separate column, such observations and such facts, as we thought necessary to inform the Commissioners fully, and with due allowance made for that state of things, I believe the return will be found correct and accurate, and is in all cases founded upon the returns made to us.

We observe, that there are no fewer than 267 schools marked with an asterisk; and we observe, that they do not return any children as being in actual attendance in any of those schools; from whence it follows, that those schools do not contribute, in any degree, to make out the number of 43,000 returned by the Society, as being actually present in the schools at a certain day. Are we to infer from that, that at the time of making the return there were no children in attendance at those schools marked with an asterisk?—Quite the contrary. There were children in attendance certainly in many of them.

Then

Then it follows, that the 43,000 which were in attendance on a certain day, were in those schools which were not marked with an asterisk?—Yes, on those marked with a dagger. The inspectors saw, with their own eyes, 43,000 children in the schools they inspected, and which fact is returned.

But the inspector could not see what number of children might be in the schools marked with an asterisk and a dagger?—Certainly not.

And there might be an attendance in those schools?—Certainly.

To point the question to those schools at which the inspector did see children in attendance, have you any data upon which you can form an opinion, as to what proportion the number of children, at a certain day at a country school in Ireland, would bear to the total number resorting to that school for the purpose of education?—My own opinion, from the best consideration that I have been able to give to the subject, by reference to documents respecting the schools, and by conversation with the inspectors, is, that the number bonâ fide receiving instruction at the schools, will be found to be double the number receiving instruction on a given day; I think indeed it is considerably more.

You will observe, that the number 91,000 includes all the schools marked with an asterisk, but the number 43,000 excludes those schools which are so marked; does it follow, that the difference between the two numbers had been subtracted from the schools?—No, certainly not; our report is silent upon this point, as to how many were subtracted. We did not give information upon it, because we had not the means, nor were we called upon for it; and we stated upon the face of the Return, the source from whence we gave the information required.

Are we distinctly to collect, that 91,000, specified in the return as the total number upon the rolls, is inferior to the number which at that time were actually receiving education?—That is my opinion decidedly. I should say, that the number would exceed 100,000 children, as fairly in progress of education in the different schools.

Have the goodness to state the ground upon which you conceive there was a greater number in the course of education, than the number actually upon the rolls?—It does appear somewhat singular; but my reason is, because I know, that in some instances, though the rolls show a greater number than can be fairly said to be in the progress of education in particular schools, in other cases they fall much short of that number; and I have made some calculations, I think upon sound data, that lead me to think that the roll will not always exhibit (particularly in the country) the numbers that are fairly in the progress of education. There is one calculation which we have made upon the subject, which, to my mind, is perfectly satisfactorily, and upon data of which there can be no doubt at all; and that is taken from the state of things in the model schools under our own eye. Now, in our model schools, male and female, we have ascertained the number which may be said to be present, or an average, at any one time. We have a certain number upon our rolls, and we then see what the proportion is between those who are present at any one time, and those who are upon the rolls. We know, that in our schools, the number which appears upon the rolls is always a lesser number, and cannot be a larger number than those actually in progress of education during the course of the year. Our knowledge arises from this; that we correct and check our rolls carefully every three months, and every child is struck off the rolls who has not been found in attendance for six weeks; if there has been an absence for that length of time, unless we get a sufficient reason, such as sickness, or other cause, to account for its absence, we conclude the child has left the school, and its name is struck off. Now the number actually present upon a given day will not be found to be more than half the number which appears upon our roll at that time, even in the model schools, purged and corrected as our roll is; and I say, that that roll, looked on at any given time, does not give a correct view of the actual number of children in a course of education; for example, the number we had upon our rolls in our model schools was 697, at a certain time, and the average number present at one time, at the period referred to, was not more than 358. Now, if a number of children had completed their education with us during the particular year to which that calculation refers, supposing they had completed the last six months of their education on the 1st of July, they would be struck off the roll on that day, and they would not appear on the roll in the month of July or after, consequently, the roll would not exhibit the number of children who were in progress of education in the schools during that year; and not only the names of all who were receiving education would not appear, but even those of the most valuable portion of them would be omitted, and yet the number present at any one time is not more than half the number appearing on our rolls. There is this further reason for my opinion; in the country there are causes operating, which do not operate in town, to render the number to be found present on any certain day less in proportion to the number appearing on the roll; as, for instance, there is the sowing time, the harvest and potatoe digging, which at particular seasons keep away multitudes, and other casualties will produce the same effect; also, the distances, in consequence of which young children cannot attend the schools in bad weather; the distances are shorter in town. All these things go to show, that the calculation is less favourable to my view, when made with regard to Dublin schools, than a calculation founded upon data derived from country schools, would be.

We observe, that you have returned a school at Philipstown, in the county of Louth, as having fifty on the roll; that school is in connection with one of the Commissioners, who happens to know, that ninety was the real number in the course of education in that school at the time in question; can you account for that discrepancy in any way?—It can only be accounted for, as being one instance of very many in which there are inaccuracies in keeping the rolls, arising from the slovenly habit which country schoolmasters have had of doing things. The fact is, that they will not keep regular rolls; perhaps that man might have neglected neglected to add the names of his new-coming scholars. I see, that this school is returned as having thirty-six males and twelve females, as the number on the roll 20th of May 1825, making together forty-eight, whilst only nine are present at inspection; that is an instance, where the roll does not exhibit much more than half the actual strength of the school, and the number present not one-fifth of the number on the roll.

From what information is the statement which is made in the return taken?—It is taken from the inspector's report; and there is an observation in the column of observations, with regard to this school, which must be the inspector's remark to us, "bad attendance caused by spring work." That, however, only explains why there should be present so small a number at the time of inspection, namely, eight males and one female.

Who was the inspector that visited that school?—I will ascertain the fact, and inform the board.*

Is the accuracy of the return materially affected by the opposition which was made to the principles of the Society?—The number of those present at the time of the actual inspection has been affected by the opposition; and the Commissioners will find that noticed with regard to several of the schools in the country.

When you say, that you believe that the rolls do not contain the true number in actual attendance, do you apply that observation to the period of time when there was the most opposition?—I would apply it to all times; but it will of course have least operation during the time there was most opposition. It is to be observed, however, that though the opposition would affect the number attending, it would not affect the number on the roll.

You were understood to say, that the actual number in attendance exceeded the number on the roll?—I mean, the total number fairly in progress of education through the schools.

When you say the number fairly in progress of education, you mean those which are so, notwithstanding the opposition manifested to the schools?—Certainly.

Suppose you found upon the roll of a school for any certain period, say for instance for three months, 100 children, do you conceive that more than 100 children could be considered as having received the benefit of education, and to have been in attendance during that period?—If the roll be properly kept, certainly not.

Do you conceive, that in general the roll shows rather less than more than those who actually attend the school?—I do; I think it shows rather less than more than the number of children deriving the benefit of education from the school, though it shows more than the actual number in attendance at any one given time. The difference between the average attendance and the number receiving instruction in the school, may be illustrated thus:—Suppose, for instance, there were six children in attendance upon a given school, A. B. C. D. E. and F., A. B. and C. attend on Monday, B. C. and D. attend on Tuesday, C. D. and E. attend on Wednesday, D. E. and F. attend on Thursday, E. F. and A. attend on Friday, and F. A. and B. attend on Saturday. Now, though there be in point of fact six children in progress of education, each of whom will have attended three days in the week, yet the average of daily attendance would be only three.

How many would the number on the roll appear to be in that case?—I should say, that the number on the roll ought to be six; that would be the number in that case, if the roll were correctly kept; but taking the whole country together, and considering the inaccuracy with which the rolls are kept, the number, I am satisfied, is less upon the roll than the number of children who are actually in the progress of education.

How is the number on the roll supplied to you; is it by the inspector, or do you derive it from other quarters; does the inspector himself examine the roll?—It is his duty to do so; it is his duty to return to us a statement, according to the three columns now before the board; "the number on the roll," "present at the time of inspection," and "average attendance."

Is it to be taken for granted, that the number stated to be on the roll has been so returned to you by the inspector?—In some instances the first column, namely, the number on the roll, is filled up by reference to the answers to the queries; that takes place when we have not an inspector's report, to which we can refer for the information, and we have noticed in the column of observations when that is the case.

Does it not often appear, that the inspectors find that the roll is not correctly kept?—They often complain, that the masters of many of the schools do not keep the rolls, or the average attendance, regularly.

We observe, that in several instances the return of the number is accompanied with an observation, that no roll whatever is kept; are we not to understand that fact as further illustrating, that the total number on the rolls is to be taken as inferior rather than superior to the actual number in the course of education, inasmuch as there are none carried to the credit of the roll out of the average number of those which may be in attendance, but not entered upon it?—Certainly; it may be so in some cases, but I believe it is not so in many instances; we do not affect to give the number in the column headed "on the roll," unless we have a document showing it; that document generally is the inspector's report, which is the most satisfactory document to take it from, and when we have not the necessary necessary information from that document, we fall back upon the answers which have been given to the queries, and we give the numbers there stated as the best we can supply.

Is it the duty of the inspector, or of the master, when a child does not attend for a certain period of time, to strike it off the roll?—Yes, and it is equally his duty to enter an incoming scholar.

What time of discontinuance of the child's attendance would make it the duty of the master or the inspector to strike him off?—We have no fixed rule upon the subject; but the instruction is, that the roll should contain those who may fairly be considered as attending the schools; in the country the fluctuations are greater than in town, for in the country a child may be kept from a school for three months, and afterwards return to it; the causes which interfere with the attendance of a child in a town school, as I have already stated, are not so many as in the country, nor do they operate so long.

When you speak of answers to queries, do you allude to the queries put by you before the school was established, or subsequently?—I allude to both; for there are both classes. In some cases a reference is had to the answers to the queries given on the primary application, in which case, the answers are prospective, according to the explanations of the patron; but we require the queries to be often answered whenever an interval has elapsed from the former answers, and when we think we ought to have more recent information with regard to the circumstances of any school, we require them to be answered afresh; and we have several sets of answers for many of the schools, and we always have fallen back upon the last answers which have been given, in the absence of the inspector's report.

In some instances, where the number is stated, there is an asterisk referring to a note, stating that reference has been made to answers to your queries; does it refer to answers to queries pointing to numbers on the roll, or are we to understand it as referring to answers to queries which you put, with a view of ascertaining how many were likely to attend the school?—It does not refer merely to the answers to the queries giving the number likely to attend the school, but also to answers to subsequent queries, showing the number in actual attendance.

We observe, in the county of Antrim, there are, in a return before the board, four schools following each other; the school of Cherois, the school of Williams, the school of Brachas, and the school of Russell; the first is returned as having upon the roll 141 males and 152 females; the second as having 100 males and 100 females; the third 50 males and 50 females; and the fourth 100 males and 100 females; and the date of the return is the 1st of September 1824; there is to each of these an asterisk, which refers to the note already noticed; are we to understand, that those numbers were reported to you on the 1st of September 1824, as the number then upon the roll of the school?—I think it is exceedingly probable, with regard to those schools, that they came into existence after the inspector had been in that part of the country, and that it is to the queries reference is made, namely, to the queries which were answered, probably in the first instance. I am the more led to think so from their appearing there with round numbers, and that the number specified was the the probable number which the patron expected would attend when the schools were opened.

You will observe in the returns from the same county, in the same page, that there are many stated in the like manner; do you conceive the same answers will apply to those schools as to those to which you have just alluded?—[The witness examined the return.]—With regard to most of those marked with an asterisk in that page, they are schools, I have no doubt, that came into existence after the inspector had passed that quarter, for I see that they are mostly expressed in round numbers, in the same way; this, however, is a county in which I observe, upon looking over the return, that there are the greatest number of asterisks, by far the greater number.

In your report, presented last year, you gave a list of the masters and mistresses to whom gratuities had been awarded; they amounted to 712; can you state to the Commissioners how it happens, that of so many schools as you have, and which appear to amount to about 1,500, gratuities have not been awarded to more than 712?—Various causes will go to explain that; in the first place, this report brings matters up to the 5th of January 1825; if I mistake not, in the year which ended upon that day, there were added very nearly 500 new schools to the list, I believe 490 at least were added in the course of that year; of course the teachers who had newly come into the schools would not be considered entitled to have a gratuity conferred upon them; a teacher so circumstanced would not have earned it; that is one cause, and would account for 200, or perhaps more; another cause would perhaps be this; we do not give gratuities to teachers as a matter of course; there must be a certain quantity of positive and comparative merit to entitle them to it; neither do we give a gratuity, unless the proficiency of their scholars, and the state of their school, as well as their own personal good conduct shall appear to deserve it; nor do we give any, if it be found that there has been any deviation from the rules or principles of the Society; if that had taken place, it would have stopped any gratuity, and those causes all operating, account why there are no more than 712 gratuities in the list. Besides, if I mistake not, some of the gratuities that would properly have gone into the account, ending 5th January 1825, had not been issued, or at least if they had, we had not got the vouchers back from the teachers in time to insert them in last year's account, and they will form an item of some extent in the accounts of the present year. It will appear, that in the month of January, 1825, we have made payments to a considerable amount in respect of gratuities earned in the year 1824.

Do you consider all schools which receive any aid from the Society in the way of books or school materials as subject to your regulations, and bound to conform to them?—Certainly

N^o 17,
continued.

J. D. Jackson,
Esq.
3 Jan. 1826.

tainly we do, unless the parties concerned come in with their money and buy them in the shop at regular sale prices, which it is open to every manager of a school to do; but in every case where the aid received lessens our funds, we do expect the rules and regulations of the Society to be adhered to, except in one class of grants, namely, grants of our cheap books for lending libraries, which we give to institutions of every kind, where a proper provision is made for the preservation of the books. We grant them to every class of schools, hospitals, gaols, village libraries, and in short, wherever there is a person on whom we can rely, who will take care of them, and apply them to the purpose for which they are granted.

We observe in the return referred to, a column stated to be the "Average attendance," as contra distinguished from the attendance actually seen by the inspector, what is meant by the average attendance?—The inspector on the view of the accounts kept by the master, as it is his duty to do, strikes the average number in attendance within such a period, one day with another, and he returns the average attendance from the accounts so kept by the master.

Is that the average upon each particular day of the period?—No, it would then be the actual attendance; the inspector takes the whole number that has attended on a certain number of days, and divides that amount by the number of days to produce the average.

To what period does he usually go back?—The inspectors would be better able to inform the Commissioners on that point than myself; but I should suppose it is a year. I suppose the inspector takes the whole number that has attended during the year, and divides it by the number of days, which gives the average attendance.

Then it does not form the exact amount of the number of children in progress of education?—No it does not; there are different children on different days; the average is struck by the inspector upon looking to the book kept by the master, and if I may be permitted to add, with respect to the gratuities, it is one of the ingredients we look to in granting them; we examine whether the master has kept regular books; if the inspector states he has been embarrassed in consequence of the irregular manner in which the books have been kept, that affects the amount of gratuity; and if the master has been trained in our schools, as he ought to know better, probably the gratuity would be entirely withheld. We labour as much as we can to bring about accuracy, but it is a most difficult thing to accomplish it among the class of people who are usually employed as schoolmasters. We are however, I am happy to say, gradually getting a much better class of people to fill the office of schoolmaster.

You stated on a former occasion, that the number of schools which came into connection with the Society in 1826 were about 490; how many have since been added?—During the year which will end on the 5th of January 1826, we shall have assisted 261 schools, and I can, if it is wished, state the number which have been assisted in each quarter. In the quarter ending on the 5th of April, we added 75 new schools; in the quarter ending the 5th of July, 71 new schools; in the quarter ending the 5th of October, 69 new schools; and in the present quarter, which we are now on the point of finishing, we have assisted 46 new schools.

In what manner should you account for the number of schools you assisted in 1825, being so much less than the number you assisted in 1824, being 490 in the one case, and only 261 in the other?—There are various causes for it; one, and a very efficient cause, was the anticipation of the Commissioners report, for many persons were in great doubt as to what the effects might be upon our institution, whether it was to be abolished, or whether we were to continue in operation. The uncertainty prevented many persons from making applications to us; another cause which operated to a very considerable extent, was, that we ourselves were in some degree of uncertainty as to what was before us, and we did not wish to embark in engagements which we might not have the means of fulfilling, so that during this year we were very cautious in making grants. We presented an estimate to Parliament, praying for a grant of 30,000 l. which, on a fair view of the progress of the Society, we thought would be requisite; and we were led to doubt, whether we should get that grant during the pendency of the report of the Commissioners, which was not presented to His Majesty until the 30th of May.

Are we to collect upon the whole, that the number of schools now in connection with the Kildare-place Society, which amounted to 1490 in the beginning of 1825, with an addition of 261, diminished by the amount of whatever schools have receded from your connection, is now the number of schools in connection with the Society?—Yes, minus further the number which have ceased to exist from various causes, some have merged into other schools; in other cases the patrons have died, and some schools have ceased from other causes, which are always putting an end to a number of schools in every year.

Have you, in point of fact, refused any application within the last three months?—We have, those which were not fit to be complied with; but none, as I believe, for the causes I have mentioned in a former answer.

But one of those causes, namely, the uncertainty whether you would be a durable institution, might have deterred applications to you for assistance?—Certainly; I make no doubt of it.

It must, therefore, have deterred from applying to you the patrons connected with other institutions?—Certainly; and there was another circumstance which affected our operations this year; for by reason of the communication made to us by his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, already mentioned, and what we agreed to do in consequence of that, and the sending out of the circulars, we were obliged to adopt a very strict course; but we should violate the pledge we had given, for we stated, that we would not assist any school in connection with other institutions; and in consequence of that, we were obliged to put it to

to all schools in connection with us, as well as to all others, which sought to be assisted by us, whether they then were, or contemplated thereafter, to be in connection with other Societies; and the consequence has been, that all our operations have been impeded and disjoined a good deal this year.

The question about to be proposed will admit only of an approximation towards the truth; you have stated, that it was your general impression, that in the beginning of the year 1825, there were about 100,000 children in progress of receiving education; have you ever been able to form, from a review of what has passed, any opinion as to what was the number of children subtracted in the autumn of 1824, in consequence of the opposition made against the schools?—I could not give any answer to the question, but a guess.

Can you form any opinion, whether it approached nearer to 20,000, 30,000, or 40,000?—I protest it must be a mere guess, but I should say, that I think it did not amount to 30,000; that is my opinion; it might be from 20,000 to 25,000, but it is a mere guess.

Have you any grounds for forming an opinion as to what proportion of that number (without entering into consideration of what the number may have been) may subsequently have returned to the schools of the Society?—I have great reason to believe, that scholars in great numbers have returned to the schools; indeed, I have recently had authentic information upon that subject; for the secretary of the local committee of the schools at Cork was with our committee on Saturday, and we put the question to him, whether the children were returning to the schools, and what was the proportion in which they were so returning; and he stated, that they were returning, and in great numbers. Upon being asked, what was the proportion in a school, for instance, which consisted of fifty before the interference had taken place, he stated, that as many as forty might be found in the school now; and he thought he might say, that a larger proportion had returned; but he mentioned some instances of individual schools under his own eye, the names of which he specified, in which the numbers were greater now than before the attack had been made upon them.

When you speak of the numbers being greater, do you mean Roman Catholic children?—We were speaking of them; it was the Roman Catholic children which had been abstracted from the schools; and he said, that they were chiefly Roman Catholic children which had returned.

Are you of opinion, from all the sources of information you have had recourse to, that more than half have returned, judging from the particular cases which have come to your knowledge, and other sources of information?—Judging from the particular cases that have come to my knowledge, and judging from information obtained through the medium of correspondence, I should say, that more than half had returned. I cannot speak of them as being the same children.

Has the opposition been going on with the same activity during the last year as in the preceding?—I think not.

By the return to which reference has been so frequently made, it appears that some schools are carried into account which do not appear to have been inspected since the year 1822 or 1823, and which appear to have been closed at the period when the subsequent inspection would have taken place; for instance, "Carnalbana closed in 1823, the master absent." "In 1824, also closed, the house repairing." "Black-hill inspected 3d of October 1823;" "closed when visited in 1824, teacher absent;" in both these instances, the numbers which appeared at the last inspection to have been upon the rolls are continued, and form part of the total number of 91,190, as if those schools were still subsisting, and those children still in attendance?—If we had reason to believe that the schools had ceased to be in existence, they would have been struck off the books; if we had reason to believe that the school had ceased, and there was not a fair prospect of its resuming after it had been repaired, we should strike it off; but feeling that there was every reasonable probability that when repaired, it would go forward, we did not think ourselves warranted in striking it off. It appears from the return now shown to me, by one of the board, that the master of that school received a gratuity in 1823 and 1824, which shows that the school was then in operation.

Do those entries, from which it appears that the school was closed, apply to the period of inspection?—Yes.

And not necessarily to other periods?—Not necessarily; the inspector states that as a reason for not giving all the information which the Society requires.

In the report of the Commissioners is stated a number of instances in which Roman Catholic clergymen had made applications for aid to the Society, which it appears they received; we wish to know whether similar applications have been made during the year 1825?—Certainly there have some.

Have they been acceded to?—Yes, they have; I do not speak from a distant impression of particular schools upon my mind, but I can speak generally, that there have been applications which have been acceded to, though I could not name the schools.

Will you have the goodness to make a return to the Commissioners of all the instances in which Roman Catholic clergymen have made applications for aid for schools during 1825, and which aid has been afforded?—I will make such a return.

At what period do you propose to give an answer to the different schools which have applied to know, whether you will give fixed salaries or not?—When Parliament shall be pleased to determine, whether we shall be enabled to give salaries or not; we have not hitherto been in the habit of giving them.

Is not this about the period when you make the annual report to your subscribers?—It is.

J. D. Jackson,
Esq.
2 Jan. 1826.

It is in progress, is it not?—It is.

The reason of the question is, to know whether you have made up your mind as to the statement of the number of children deriving assistance in the way of education?—No; we shall have more materials than we now possess, which will enable us to make the statement with greater accuracy. There is one tour of inspection not yet finished, and there are inquiries abroad from us, which will enable us to make a more accurate report than we could at present.

In the county of Dublin (looking casually through the return) it appears there is a school in Round Town, for which credit is taken as having upon the roll 15 males and 14 females, the last inspection being on the 20th February 1823; and there is this note, "Discontinued when visited in 1824." In the county of Kildare, on the next page, there is a school at Nierney, where the number on the roll taken credit for is fifty; the last inspection is the 25th April 1822, and the note is, "closed at the period of the last inspection;" will you explain that?—That term, "closed," does not convey to my mind that the school was at an end by any means, but that it was found closed when the inspector visited, which might have arisen from the illness of the master, or the potatoe-digging season, or other accidental cause.

The last inspection is 1822; there is no return since then. Ballymore, in the same county, the last inspection is the 30th April 1823, "closed in 1824, teacher being dismissed?"—Neither does that convey to my mind that the school was relinquished; it is the actual situation in which the school was found by the inspector at the time.

Then again in Kilkenny Knocktopher, the last inspection is the 30th of November 1822, the number returned, 50 males, 14 females. The note is, "master dismissed and school closed in 1824?"—I will inquire into the particulars of this case, and furnish the Commissioners with more precise information than I am now able to supply*.

Can you explain why there has been no return of an inspection, since November 1822?—I beg to refer to the last answer; I should be of opinion that there must have been an inspection subsequently to that period, and that the school was found with the master dismissed, and the school closed in 1824.

Does not the column headed in the return, "date of return," purport to give the last date at which the inspection was made?—That column does not purport to give the date of the last inspection; it purports to give the date of the document from which the return is made.

Is not the return made from the last document furnished by the inspector?—No, it is given from the last return of the inspector, where we have one, but if we have not, then we give it from the answers to the queries, and I should conclude from this memorandum, that in point of fact, this school was inspected in 1824, and the inspector has returned to us, that the school was then closed in consequence of the dismissal of the master.

There is nothing said of any return subsequent to 1822; if it had been working in 1823, and had been inspected, should you not have had a return?—Certainly.

Is not the conclusion then, that it was not in operation in 1823 or in 1824?—The conclusion is, that it was not in operation at this particular period, not that it had ceased, but that it was closed from some temporary cause; but if there are any instances, with respect to which the Commissioners would require precise information, I can supply it to them hereafter; I cannot carry the particular facts in my mind as to each school*.

The questions were put, with a view to illustrate and further to explain the principle upon which information was sought, rather than to gain information with respect to the particular schools referred to?—So I understood.

Is the training school belonging to the Society at this time full, or are there any vacancies?—It has been full; the particular season of the year may prevent it being quite full at this moment, for I think that a batch of masters was going out about the Christmas holidays, and the new batch has not yet come in, but we have had that branch of the institution in full operation throughout the year.

Has the training school for mistresses been equally operative?—Yes, I think we shall have educated this year upwards of two hundred schoolmasters, and one hundred schoolmistresses; I am speaking in round numbers.

Are there applications upon your books for the admission of training mistresses?—Yes, but the causes adverted to in a former part of my examination, have operated upon those applications, as well as with regard to applications for other descriptions of aid.

Have you taken any particular means to induce the schools to which you have alluded to discontinue their connection with other Societies, and to continue their connection exclusively with you?—None in the world; we have put it simply to them, and left it fairly to their own option.

Have you any means of knowing whether other Societies have followed the same course?—If I may judge from certain publications which I have seen, I should think they have not.

* Upon referring to the books of the Society, I can now state, that there have been several inspections of Knocktopher school since November 1822. It was again inspected on the 8th of April 1823, when there were present 27 males and 9 females; again on the 6th of May 1824, when it was reported that the school had been closed for some time, the master having been dismissed for misconduct, that a new master had been selected, and that the school was likely to go on. This school was last inspected on the 28th of October 1825, and although closed at that time, it was stated, that Mr. Hamilton was in expectation of re-establishing it shortly; that he was about procuring a competent master, and would inform the Society as soon as he had done so.
